This is one of six lesson plans derived from Hometown Teams: How Sports Shape America, a traveling exhibition organized by the Smithsonian Institution's Museum on Main Street program and brought to you by your state humanities council. The materials and activities were compiled to help students observe, encounter, participate, and learn about the importance of and impact of sports in American communities.

The lesson plans that accompany Hometown Teams will help you create meaningful and fun experiences for your students, based on current common core standards for grades 6-10. All the lessons can be adapted for younger or older audiences, so evaluate each lesson before selecting activities for your students.

Help us gauge the effectiveness of the educational activities for Hometown Teams: How Sports Shape America. Please take this short survey and let us know how you used these materials. Your input is much appreciated.

Sincerely, The Museum on Main Street Team

TRY IT!

Use technology, including the Internet, to produce, publish, and update individual or shared writing products.
HOMETOWN TEAMS Exhibition Field Trip: Suggested Activities

You might consider doing one or both of these activities when visiting the Hometown Teams exhibit.

1. Divide students into small groups of 2–3, and have each group view one stereoscope image of a sports stadium/arena in the “Fields of Glory” section of the exhibit. Ask each group to imagine themselves as fans at the time the stadium/arena was opened, and write down some ideas of how the sport would have looked different to a fan then vs. now.

2. Divide students into small groups of 2–3, and ask them to explore the Hometown Teams exhibit. Assign each group a sport, and ask them to find evidence in the exhibit (images, objects, text) of controversial issues of any nature (race, gender, safety, health, etc.). Ask each group to share the different controversial issues that can be observed in the exhibit.

Discuss the following questions with the group:

- What could make your favorite sport or team even better?
- Are there health and safety debates that dominate discussions?
- Are there issues regarding who can play the sport?
- Are there issues about compensation of players, or evaluation of players?
- Are there debates about the appropriateness of your favorite team’s name or mascot?
- Are there any environmental issues that come as a result of the sport?

ACTIVITIES FOR STUDENTS

You might choose to include all or some of the activities below in lessons for the project.

MISSION

- RESEARCH archived newspapers, yearbooks, websites, or other collections to see how the issue has evolved over time.

- EXPLORE your school or town's sports fields or stadiums and do a survey of the impact the stadium has on the immediate environment.

- WATCH a game of your favorite sport and determine which activities or practices present a potential health risk to players, and how the body is affected by things players do on and off the field.

- DESIGN a system of compensation for the players of the sport you’ve chosen that would be considered fair and just.

- DESIGN an alternate logo or mascot for a team with a controversial name or mascot, drawing on the history of the team and its town.

- INTERVIEW family and community members to collect oral histories about the controversial issue you’ve selected. What do they know about it, and what are their opinions?
GUIDING QUESTIONS FOR STUDENTS

- What will be the future impact on people or environments if things go unchanged with your sport or team?

- What resources or regulations would be needed to address the issue at hand?

- Which organizations or people have the power to make change on the issue?

- Is there popular knowledge of the issue? Does awareness need to be raised?

- How can technology play a role in addressing the issue?

FINAL STEPS FOR STUDENTS: Choose a format (paper, website, infographic, video recording/documentary, performance) appropriate to discuss your proposed solution to the issue, and create talking points so that you can present your ideas to others.
